DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 3-19, 31, 32, and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Araki et al (JP 59-211036 in view of its English language abstract) in view of applicant's admission.

Araki et al disclose a photopolymerizable image forming composition comprising a reducing dye, a photoacid generator, a binder, a photopolymerizable monomer, and an initiator. Based on a spot translation by a PTO staff member, it appears that the reference meets the instant claim limitations with the exception of the elastomeric binder, but the reference teaches that any suitable known binder may be employed.

In the background of the instant specification, applicant admits that it is known that the photopolymerizable composition of flexographic plates "generally comprise an elastomeric binder", thus admitting that it is well known in the art for a photopolymerizable composition used in manufacturing a flexographic plate employ an elastomeric binder.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to prepare the material of Araki et al choosing to employ an elastomeric binder as taught to be conventional by applicant, with reasonable expectation of achieving a material having superior work efficiency.

A full translation of Araki et al is forthcoming.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments filed 1/27/2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant has argued that the Araki et al reference teaches that the material for use in a relief plate, but fails to exemplify its use for relief plates in the examples. The examiner is not persuaded by this argument, because the reference does suggest the material's use for a relief plate, and the fact that it is not exemplified does not teach away from using the material for a relief plate. Also, with respect to the amount of the onium salt compound in relation to the dye, given the amounts of the compound taught to be employed in the material, thus one of ordinary skill in the art would have been reasonably motivated to employ the compounds in any amounts within their claimed ranges, and obtain a material wherein the onium salt compound is employed in a greater amount than the dye.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
